from November 1, 2015 to March 1, 2016

MSc in Agriculture,
Plant Sciences

MSc in Agriculture,
Environmental Quality Sciences

The Hebrew University of Jerusalem's Robert H. Smith Faculty of Agriculture, Food & Environment offers 12-month, English-language MSc programs (non-thesis).

Outstanding students may transfer to the MSc thesis track for a second year of studies.

The programs are taught by academic faculty, leading researchers and industry professionals, integrating scientific theory and practical application with rigorous coursework and a research exercise.

On successful completion of the program, students will be prepared to address the challenges and opportunities related to agricultural intensification and environmental sustainability.

Academic studies are supplemented by field trips, sightseeing tours and social events to create a unique and stimulating experience. Visit our website for the Application Guidelines.

Partial and full scholarships are available for qualified students
